“ When Kelvin and I first married 47 years ago, we lived in West Nashville. Kelvin worked nights, so I was home alone in an area close to the prison. Once, when there was an escape, my mother and Charlet came to my house and saw me covering my Windows with blankets so the escaped couldn't see in it he happened to come by. Charlet called me chicken, which would remain her name for me for years to come. I was never Debbie, I was always Chicken.
The world has lost a rare gem.

“ Charlet was the sweetest aunt anyone could ever hope for. She would call me every year on my birthday and sing to me. Last year she left it on my voicemail and I saved it. Now I can still hear her voice Dec. 3rd and remember how much she loved all of us. So glad I saved it! Will greatly miss her calls. My husband will also. We love you Aunt Charlet!
