“ My favorite thing about cody was that he loved the people who were lucky enough to him in thier life's with everything he had. When cody loved , he loved hard and loved without conditions. He would give the shirt off his back to anyone in need. He had the most contagious laugh and all it took was a few chuckles and the whole room would be laughing. And the way he always knew when someone was having a bad day and could turn their whole day around just by simply being in his presence. If one person could learn just one thing from our pain and heartbreak of losing our sweet cody so soon, please remember that tomorrow is never promised and you better cherish the people god gave you because he's gonna need them back one day. And believe me it hurts so bad. So please take the time to let your people know you love them. I love you cody and I'll be seeing you my dear friend.
