“ Chase, I remember back at Banyan with you. We always shared a lot of laughs. You and I were certainly the only southerners there for awhile. I was so happy to hear another country accent! We were also in the same group together. Where I learned so much about you and your life. And how it was filled with such loving family. I remember you got mad at me for calling you and that girl jess out for having a little fling. And told you that you needed to work on yourself and self-succeed before you tried to do anything as far as helping another person, specially a female. You let your ego/pride get the best of you, that conversation. We both got over it within the hour. And after that we became closer and some great conversations! I miss you buddy! You're finally at rest now my friend. You will be forever loved and always missed. RIP my country brother!
