“ Mama was my best friend. She was only 18 years older than me and I had her all to myself for about my first 6 years. Daddy was away in the US Navy a lot. She was my playmate. She read a whole stack of Little Golden books to me every night. She cut out my paper rolls and colored with me in my color books. She would frown a little when I took some of her bath powder to decorate the mud pies I made or took one of the apartment owner's gardenias from the bush in her yard. When my two sisters came along, I became mama's right arm in helping take care of them. We had many adventures during our Navy years and after daddy's retirement. When mama became bedridden it was an honor and a privilege to care for her. Caregiving is the hardest job I ever had. Thank God my sisters and I and some amazing care givers were able to keep her in her home for almost the entire time. I know mama has rest and peace now and is safe in the arms of our Lord and Savior. Her last sentences were spoken one after the other. She said, "I love you. Be good. Go to church." Love you forever mama. Mary Jo

Mary Jo, your momma was lucky to have you as her daughter, and you are lucky to have her as your momma. God bless you all.

“ So many memories of her from my childhood! She loved her flowers (especially Irises!) and she loved birds. I always admired her ceramic bird figurines. I remember sitting next to her in church, going thru her purse to find gum. She always had her notebook to take notes during the sermon, so I had my own notebook except I would draw in it instead of taking notes. Oops! I remember watching episodes of “Bewitched” and “I Dream of Jeanie” at her house, and I still can see her face light up with laughter so clear in my mind. I could go on and on. She may be gone from this world, but never forgotten.

MY

Yes, indeed! He called her his "Sweetie." He called her that in front of my students when he visited my classroom one day. From then on I had students who would ask me about how Sweetie was doing.
