Missing the most incredible woman ive ever known. My mom was the most amazing woman. Strong and determined and never let anyone or anything hold her back. I really look up to her. If i can only be half as great as she was then im extremely blessed. I miss her so much it hurts and had no idea how hard life would be without her. I wish now i would have listened to her about so many things. I had no idea the true honest to God wisdom she had. She truly was a smart and very intelligent and gifted woman. I know shes watching over me...thats the only reason im still here today living life bc according to all medical personal im not suppose to be here...but by the grace of God and what i would like to think of as a pep talk from my mom on the sidelines rooting for me just like she always did and put in her own personal favor asking God to give me one more chance. Im gonna make this one count mom i promise. Love and miss you so much it hurts.
