“ I am so sorry to learn of Jim's passing. I was one of his first students at Pleasant View Elementary, where he taught me to play trumpet in the mid 1970s. Jim inspired me to keep playing, and even though we lost touch, I always fondly remembered those beginning lessons and songs I learned from him. I continued playing through high school, college, and a few amateur bands over the years. I also paid forward the lessons I learned from Jim and others to my own children's high school bands, and most recently I've volunteered my time to teach trumpet to children with limited means. All of this began with Jim. Please accept my deepest sympathies. I know the Lord's trumpet section just got a bit better. I recorded the link below in memory of Jim. I hope it makes him proud.
