Creativity was the heartbeat of who he was and in addition to creating art he played piano, guitar, and sang. Nick was such a light in every life he touched. He was a true artist and creative soul. Nick was always ready with a joke, an accent, an impression, or a song. He had a way of knowing when someone needed cheering and quickly brought a smile to their faces. He had one of the biggest hearts you'll ever meet, always caring for others and helping friends in need; selfless and loving to the core.

A friend shared the quote "Creativity is the spark of the soul, and a glimpse of the beauty we carry within and the light we give to others." “ I was friends with your dad and when he came to visit or we came to visit him you were always around. When you were younger you always had paper and pencils with you. I loved seeing your artwork and your dad was proud. My two kids are heartbroken to hear about your passing. Y'all were friends even though us parents put y'all together. All of us has changed paths but you stuck with your artwork. Rest in peace and give your dad a hug for me.
