“ As a stand here on the deck this afternoon and watch the leaves Scurry across the wood line floor I think of you and how you blew into my life 38 years ago my friend. Who knew a breakfast sandwiches could taste so good, skipping work and acting like children at the fair, pyramid schemes you talked me into and all that laughter. A true lady and friend . I only wish I had known that life like the leaves best friends travel through our lives on the breeze. I know you walk hand-in-hand with Jesus today, I will always miss you my sweet friend.

I've only known Pam for the last year. We met watching our grandsons play basketball together. My grandson went into highschool this year and I was looking so forward to us getting to sit together again when Lucas comes to high school next year. I know she had a beautiful soul and I immediately loved her. She was a good Christian woman and I know she's rejoicing with our Lord and saviour now. RIP my friend. I love you and will never forget you.
