“ I am Tyler's "Popper Ed," or what it was supposed to be, his "Pappa Ed," his grandfather, but both he and his brother Tanner could not pronounce pappa well, so popper I was. I spent many days and nights with him when he was young, and regret that as he grew into manhood while I was not there. I remember seeing more of Spongebob Squarepants and Barney than any man ought too with him and his brother Tanner beside me, and Nana (my wife) nagging the three of us unmercifully to "wash our hands" and cleanup, etc., but always with great love and affection.

Perhaps the funniest thing Tyler ever said to me (and this was before he had really started to talk much as child), was when he answered "Okey Dokey Smokey!" to something I had asked him. It was so sudden and unexpected that it had me in stitches. Both he and Tanner could make me laugh.

It is with a sad heart that I bid him "Adieu" until I get to see Him again in that place where all tears are wiped away and joy and gladness reigns.

“ Tylee Crowell was not only my son he was a true friend, partner in crime With many laughs together. we used to have so many little secrets from his mom that we would do together and not want her to know, but also he was a very good partner/gamer if I was trying to play a game and got stuck he would tell me how to do it or give me Hints on what I needed to do. these last few days have been the hardest days of my life, over the course of these last few days I have not heard one negative thing about Tyler everybody has told me how much he was loved how much he cared about other people their feelings he always tried to make people feel uplifted spiritual told them all the right positive things in life the support and comments from people that I do not know that he knew through school through his work through Facebook I am very grateful to know that he was loved by all. Tyler was a true man of God in my eyes and in my heart. Tyler was a true man that was loved by all. Tyler will forever be loved and missed.

“ My heart is deeply broke for you loss. I only had the oppertunity to see Tyler a hand full of times when he was with my girls Lexi & Shelby but he was a funny full of life kid that will truly be missed. I will forever be greatful to him for kindness and love he showed Shelby and for letting her know how beautiful she is inside and out. My thoughts and prayers go out to your family.
