“ We met in Basic Training and out of all the guys in our basic training flight you were a genuine, kind, and a hell of a friend. We had a true brotherhood in our flight and you showed what it meant to be a true brother and friend. If anyone in our flight ever felt like they were alone or didn't have someone to be a wingman to do a task or go out on liberty you were there for that Airman. Even if it meant getting chewed out by our instructors you stood by that wingman's side. I remember wanting to go to the movies and didn't have anyone to go with on our liberty, you tagged along immediately when you saw no one would. You were the perfect example of selfless. This is heartbreaking because you were such a good soul. RIP Tyler Smith. You are truly loved by many and you will be greatly missed

“ I only knew you for a short time, but when you meet someone with a kind soul like yours, you made it feel like I knew you for a lifetime. We sat and talked for hours, shared life stories, and laughed so much together. We spoke almost every day during your last deployment, and I could always find myself laughing at my phone because of you. You were a breath of fresh air Tyler and someone I truly appreciated to have had in my life. God must've really needed you for bigger things. I trust and believe you have the best view up there and will check in on all of us from time to time. Until we see each other again yellow_heart

“ So many memories. We spent a lot of time cutting up in production. Took you on your first TDY to Oceana and watched you cut your teeth! You always kept a can of lysol close by in the event that I gave you one of my classic crop dusting treatments. Boy, we had some laughs. Lo Ed having you join the team in Japan when we stood up a brand new unit. You kept things inline for us! I saw you change from a goofy young kid to a fine young man and a fantastic Airman. We ripped on each other like an older and younger brother would. God took you too early and it hurts. I'm going to miss you little brother. Love, J MOORE
